Dear Sir(s),

Having a phone is not really a luxury it's a necessity! Try getting a job with out one.

People, however don't need cellular phones or satellite dishes, those are luxuries!

I feel that the cost of providing cellular service to some is being pushed on to others who only require basic service.

I also think that the internet is very costly to maintain and improve, and that - if any one should pay for these luxuries, it's the people who use them! Thank you for your time.

Respectfully yours
Emil Ortmueller
