No there hasn't been – other than we met with a developer that is looking at putting in an RV park. If development occurs in the near future this may be an alternative. However, nothing is definite.

I've reached out to the landowners once more via e-mail but again received no response. I offered to come up with some alternative language but they refuse to respond to me.

I did hear from one of the principles of the land trust right before the holidays.. they were going to meet and call me back..

I called him last week and he said he was going to be talking to some of the other developers and see if he can arrange a meeting.

Looking at alternative source of water and new place to build a new wwtp..

Hopefully things will begin moving again this year on the situation. Fingers crossed !!
