During the 2003 Regular Session, the Florida Legislature enacted the Tele-Competition Innovation and Infrastructure Enhancement Act (the Act). The Act, which became effective May 23, 2003, allows incumbent local exchange telephone companies (ILECs) to petition the Florida Public Service Commission (PSC or Commission) to reduce the fees charged to long distance companies (intrastate access charges). If the PSC approves a petition, the ILEC offsets the lost access fee revenue with an increase in local monthly phone rates. The revenues associated with an increase in local service rates equal revenues lost through a decrease in intrastate access charges.

On September 29, 2005, Alltel Florida, Inc. (Alltel or the company) filed a petition with the PSC requesting to reduce its intrastate access charges in a revenue neutral manner in three increments over two years. Alltel provides local exchange and local toll service in rural, high cost areas of Florida.

Alltel proposes an increase in monthly residential basic local service rates of approximately $2.11 in each of three annual increments. Rates for single-line business basic local service will increase by approximately $1.47 in each of three annual increments. Lifeline customers will not be impacted by the increases for at least two years.

The PSC is conducting two customer hearings to obtain public testimony on the proposals filed by Alltel. One of the factors the law requires the Commission to consider is whether granting the petition will help to create a more attractive competitive local telephone market for the benefit of residential consumers. The PSC is particularly interested in consumer testimony on whether, and to what extent, there is competition in the area for basic local telephone service and what types of competition the consumer would like to see. In making remarks, it would be helpful if consumers would address the extent of competition already existing in his/her area; whether he/she believes that there are other options available for local telephone service; and whether he/she would like more options or services than are currently available to him/her and what those types of services might be.

The PSC will have 90 days to issue a final order on the petition. During this 90-day period, an evidentiary hearing will be held, currently scheduled for December 1, 2005. If the petition is approved, the company will file a tariff to implement the first year’s rate changes. The PSC will then have 45 days in which to approve the filed tariff.

Residential and small business customers affected by the proposed changes are encouraged to attend the hearings.

PSC staff will provide an oral recommendation and the Commissioners will vote on this matter at a Special Agenda Conference currently scheduled for December 12, 2005.
