Side note since you have communications with him:

Is this related to Scott's finances? Since grass stopped getting mowed and he also stopped paying is condo dues in 2025?

Does he plan on starting to pay again in 2026? Otherwise we will need to raise the condo fees by his portion which is about $60k.

Eguess Lam not understanding why PSC would reject $20 million up front, it does not make sense to me why they would care if the developer agreed to pay these costs and then be paid by the new homeowners. Does PSC somehow make more with rejecting this proposal?

have water service back. If your service is still out the repairs are said to take at least a few acres to fix and possibly longer. They will work as fast as they can but will be slowed once the sun sets. Once the repairs are made the system will be slowly repressurized which can take up to an hour for full pressure to return.

Lauren Feldley-Konopinski Seems like there's 1 or 100 too many breaks but let's raise everyone's water bill. 🍅

Maybe it's time to have a couple TV news trucks pull in. Although I suggest you delegate a photogenic, knowledgeable and we'll spoken individual to be the face. of the Grenelefe residents. A news crew will seek out someone they know will become unhinged and go on a rant for at least 18 to 24 seconds...because that makes good TV but does nothing to further the narrative we would like the public to see as a noble cause.

Thank you for posting this Robert, I got the text messages yesterday and I can say I was not very happy. I always thought that it was going to go cost wise to the new homeowners and not to us as existing homeowners. Going to sign up though for the virtual meeting and see how it goes. I don't know how many people are going to see this as several people I have talked to have not even seen the text messages that went out from the water company.

Once again, thank you for your efforts in clarifying an incredibly frustrating situation. Additionally, thank you for doing so with as much of educational point of view as emotionally and financially possible.
